was born in 978 A. H.=1570 A.D. He had devoted his life to music, painting, calligraphy and poetry. His takhallus was Ibrāhīm. In the course of time he had become so much infatuated with the word Nauras that he named a new city near Bījāpūr and the royal standard and seal bore the inscriptions of Nauras. It is also said that he even issued coins bearing the legend of Nauras. Ibrāhīm 'Ādil Shāh's love of music is personally reported by Asad Baig who visited him in 1604 by the order of Akbar. Ibrāhīm told Asad Baig "Music is such a thing that it should be heard at all times." In 1614 while Ibrāhīm was staying at Lahore he met Bakhtar Khan Kalawant to whom he gave his brother's daughter in marriage and appointed him as his preceptor in singing dhrupads. He used to recite to the Mughal ambassador, Mīr Jamāluddīn Ḥusain. dhrupads of his own composition which he called Nauras.

18.	Poet.	Mīr Muḥd. Taqī whose poetical name is Mīr and who is generally known as Mīr Taqī, was the son of Mīr 'Abd'ullah; one of the nobles of Agra. On the death of his mother his father married a sister of Sirāj'uddīn 'Alī Khān Ārzū, a famous Persian Poet of Delhi, who died at Lucknow in A.H. 1169=A.D. 1756. After the death of his father Mīr Taqī went to Delhī and was educated and supported by his uncle. Although he was held in high esteem by Shāh Ālam and the nobles of his court, Mīr, owing chiefly to his independent nature was reduced to very straitened circumstances and later left Delhi in 1190=A.D.1776, and settled at Lucknow. Here he received the patronage of Nawāb Āṣaf-ud-Daulah, who assigned to him a monthly allowance of Rs. 200. Mīr is said to have lived up to 100 years and died in 1225 A.H. =A.D. 1810. He was a voluminous writer and his poems are held in great esteem. He wrote six Dīwāns of Ghazals, besides a large number of miscellaneous poems of various descriptions. He excelled chiefly in his Mathnavis of which the principal poem is Azhdā Nāma (a satire on the writings of contemporary Hindustani Poets of whom Saudā only is excepted). Josh-i-'Ishq I'jāz-i-'Ishq and Shu'lah-i'Ishq, Shikār Nama, an account of a hunting expedition of Nawāb Āsaf-ud-Daulah. He has also written Nikāt-us-Shu'rā, containing a short account of about 100 poets in Persian and he has also left a work called Faiḍ-i-Mīr.

Mīr Abd'ur Razzāq, alias Ṣamṣām'ud Daulah Shāh Nawāz Khān Khwāfī Aurangābādī, born in A.H. 1111 = 1699 A.D. of the family of Sayyids. He migrated from Khawāf, a town in Khurāsān, to India during the reign of Akbar. He went in his early life to Aurangabād and was appointed by Niẓām-ul-Mulk Āṣaf Jāh, as Dīwān of the Ṣūbah of Berār in A.H. 1145.= 1732 A.D. Subsequently, he joined Nāṣir Jung's service who waged a futile war in 1154 A.H.=1741 A.D. against his father. The author died in A.H. 1171=1758 A.D. at Aurangābād. After his death Mīr Ghulām 'Alī Āzād, Bilgrāmī (died : A.H. 1200= 1785 A.D.) his companion arranged and compiled the original sketches and also added to it a preface—the author's life.

Subsequently, the author's son, Mīr Abd'ul Ḥai to whom the present edition is due, was born in Aurangābād in A.H. 1142=1729 A.D. He amplified and rearranged the work of his father. This work was completed in the year 1194 A.H. =1780 A.D. He bore the titles of Shams'ud-Daulah, Dilāwar Jung and Ṣamṣām-ul-Mulk and rose to the rank of Khān in A.H. 1162=1748 A.D. and died in 1196 A.H. =1781 A.D.

1405 A.D. at Qawān in Gīlān where his forefathers had held the posts of Wazīr. He is better known as Khwāja Maḥmūd Gāwān, the celebrated Prime-Minister of Baihmanī Sulṭāns. He spent his early life in travelling as a merchant through various countries, while returning from a pilgrimage to Mecca he visited India and proceeded to Bīdar, the Baihmanī capital. He was taken into the service of 'Alā'-ūddīn Baihmanī who sent him in A.H. 860=1455 A.D. at the head of an army to Telingāna. He established peace and order in Telingana and other parts of the kingdom and conquered Konkan and Goa. Humāyūn after his accession in the year A.H. 862=1457 A.D. conferred upon him the title of Malik-ut-Tujjār. He discharged the functions of Wazīr under Niẓām Shāh, A.H. 865-67=1460-62 A.D. and his successor, Muḥammad Shāh who gave him the title of Khwāja Jahān. He was put to death in A.H. 886=1481 A.D. on unjust accusation by the order of the last king, Sulṭān Muḥammad Shāh Baihmanī (A.H. 867-887=A.D. 1462-1482). His surname is said to have been derived from Qawān, a town in Gīlān from which he is known as Gāwān. He is celebrated not only for his literary talents but also for his boundless generosity. He left a collection of letters entitled Rīyāḍ'ul Inshā, sometimes called Rauḍat-ul-Inshā.

Persia: born about A.H. 323 or 324=A.D. 934-35 in Shāhdāb near Ṭūs He travelled to Bukhara, Balkh and Herat in search of material for this epic and spent thirty-five years in the composition of the epic poem, "Shāh Nāma," dedicated to Sulṭān Maḥmūd of Ghaznī. (388-421=998-1030 A.D.

Shāh Nāma was written partly in Ṭūs and partly at the court of Sultān Maḥmūd Ghaznī. As the king ill-rewarded his labours the poet wrote a satire against him. Thereafter fleeing from the monarch's wrath, he found himself a wanderer without proper means of support but ultimately he received shelter at the court of a minor Persian ruler in Tabaristān. Returning at last to Ṭūs, Firdausī died in A.H. 411 (1020 A.D.) or 416 A.H. (1025 A.D.)

18. Poet. — Ḥāfiẓ (1325-1389 A.D.) : Persia's famous lyrical Ṣūfī-Poet was born in Shīrāz, a city in Southern Persia that had given birth to his renowned predecessor Sa'dī. The real name of Ḥāfiẓ was Khwāja Muḥammad Shamsu'ddīn but his penname is Ḥāfiẓ, an attribute which signifies his having a retentive memory and was bestowed upon him as a student as he knew the whole qur'ān by heart. He was a talented scholar and won the patronage of the princes and rulers who held sway over Shīrāz and Southern Persia. Khwāja Qiwām'uddīn, the minister who was the poet's particular friend and benefactor founded an Islamic theological academy in honour of Ḥāfiẓ. In this institution the poet worked as a professor for some time, but due to his critical tendency he had to renounce his post.

His position in Ghazals is as high as that of Ẓahīr Fāryābī in the Qaṣīdas. His poetic fame in due time called forth flattering invitations from dignitaries abroad. According to Firishta's account of Ḥāfiẓ, the poet was invited by the king Mahmūd Shāh Baihmanī(780-799 AH=1378-1396 A.D). to the Deccan. He accepted the invitation and travelled by sea but the outburst of a violent storm at the sea did not allow him to touch the shores of India and he had to get back to his home Shīrāz. He died in the year 791 A.H.=1389 A.D. at Shīrāz.

		many lands, visiting North-Eastern Irān, India, Arabia, Abyssinia, Syria, Northern Africa and Asia Minor.
		In 1256 A.D. he returned to his native city and devoted the rest of his long life to the literary pursuits which he had begun in his early days. He is well kown as an ethical teacher, and the author of a large number of lyric and miscellaneous compositions. Sa'dī's death occurred in A. H. 690-691=1291 A. D. Muḥammad Sulṭān, the son of Sulṭān Ghīyāth'uddīn Balban, at Multān, twice sent messengers to Shīrāz for the purpose of inducing Sa'dī to settle in Multān, but the poet excusing himself on the plea of old age sent to the prince some autograph verses.

He is said to have been assassinated at the instance of the Shāh to whom he had given offence on account of his professing the Sunnī faith. In India, during the reign of Shāh Jahān, the writings of 'Imād were held in such esteem that whoever presented the King with a specimen of Mīr 'Imad's' writing was given the rank of "One-Hundred". Mir 'Imād died in 1024 H 1615 A.D.

18. Poet.

(1207 to 1273 A.D.)

Maulānā Jalāl'uddīn Muḥammad B. Muḥammad Bahā'uddīn B. Ḥusain Al Balkhī, popularly known as Jalāl'uddīn Rūmī, was a great Ṣūfī-poet of Persia and the founder of the order of Darwīshes called after him Maulavīs. He was born in Balkh, 604 A.H. = 1207 A.D., an ancient city in North Afghānistān. Trained by his father, Bahā'uddīn, a noted mystic teacher, who was descended from a noble family. Jalāluddīn became imbued, from the outset, with the Ṣūfī doctrines of Divine love and spiritual longing for union of the soul with the Supreme Being. His father was famous in Balkh due to his learning and religious character; his fame and mystic teachings aroused the opposition of the ruling monarch at the time; consequently he was obliged to leave his native place, Balkh. He proceeded with his son, Jalāluddīn, (a small boy of five years) to Mecca by way of Baghdād and making various sojourns at other places, until after a number of years they both found royal patronage at Qūniyah—Rūm or Asia Minor, the name Rūm being applied to that portion of the Byzantine Empire of Rome. From his long residence in this territory, he received the title, Rūmī. After the death of his father in 628 A.H. = 1230 A.D., he succeeded to the headship of the Collegiate Institution of Qūnīyah in Rūm.

He also received spiritual teachings from a wandering Ṣūfī, Shams'uddīn

Tabrīzī (d. 645 A.H.=1246 A.D.), who was a constant companion of Rūmī and the poet adopted his pen-name (Takhallus) in his ghazals. Rūmī's fame however rests on the Mathnavī, a work of about 30,000 couplets in six books, teaching moral philosophy and mysticism under interpretation of verses from the Qur'ān through the medium of anecdotes, precepts, legends, etc. Rūmī is regarded as the greatest mystic and most renowned Persian philosopher and religious prce ptor.

He died in 672 A.H.=1273 A.D., at Qūnīyah in Rūm.

19. Date of completion. — Probably A.H. 662=1263 A.D.

20. Information regarding the publication and lithography. — It has been repeatedly printed in Bombay, Lucknow, Tabriz, Balkh, etc.: an abridged English translation of the whole work has been published by F. H. Whinfield, London 1887, A.D.

and to Mr. Khwaja Muhammad Ahmad, M.A., LL.B., Curator, Hyderabad Museum, for their useful suggestions and encouragement in connection with the compilation of this Catalogue. My obligations are particularly due to Dr. P. Sreenivasachar, but for whose zeal and innate love for learning the publication of this Catalogue would not have been possible.

I also offer my cordial thanks to Dr. Md. Yusufuddin, M.A., Ph.D., Reader, Religion and Culture, Osmania University, for his learned introduction.

MUHAMMAD GHAUSE,
Hyderabad Museum,
Archaeological-Department.

Museum, under the fostering care of the present Director of Archaeology, Government of Hyderabad, Dr. P. Sreenivasachar M.A., Ph.D. (London) who, by his keen interest in research work has raised the status of free India in the eyes of the Orientalists and Scholars of the Middle Eastern countries.

Last year the Arab League sent a Cultural Mission to India, which was surprised to find such rare Arabic Mss. in the Asafia State Library, Osmania University Library, Saidiya Oriental Library, Sir Salar Jung Museum and the Hyderabad Museum. For a month the Delegation stayed in Hyderabad to take microfilm copies of many of the Arabic Mss.

So valuable is the material available in Hyderabad that one may with confidence look forward to the day when the Central Government as well as the Government of Hyderabad will find it necessary to publish a detailed Catalogue of our Libraries and Museums so as to enable our Professors, Ambassadors and Cultural Attachees in foreign countries to utilise the vast store of knowledge stored in our libraries and museums.

The present Catalogue prepared by Mr. Mohd. Ghause is the first step taken in this direction. It contains 117 manuscripts (Arabic, Persian and Urdu) including a rare copy of the Holy Qur'ān (No. 4563), bearing the autograph of Emperor Shah Jahan, the builder of the Taj, "the most beautiful building in the world", and two other rare copies of the Holy Qur'ān—(No. 1324, 1693), transcribed by Prince Dara Shikoh and Emperor Aurangzeb, respectively.

The Catalogue deals not only with the subject of each Ms., the life and work of its author, but throws light on its artistic value as well.

By undertaking this rather arduous task and accomplishing it so well, Mr. Mohammed Ghause has done a distinct service to the cause of Oriental art and learning.

PREFACE

Hyderabad Museum possesses a rich collection of Arabic, Persian, and Urdu Manuscripts. An Exhibition of Hyderabad Art and Archaeology, inaugurated by Dr. Rajendra Pershad, President of India, was held at the Hyderabad House, New Delhi, in April, 1952, where some rare illuminated Mss. of the Hyderabad Museum were exhibited. The exhibition aroused interest in lovers of art and culture and won the approbation of Maulana Abul Kalam Azad, the Minister of Education and Archaeology, Government of India.

Out of the collection of Mss. I have so far catalogued 117. These Mss. (Arabic, Persian, and Urdu) are very important from their artistic, calligraphic and historical points of view. They are handsomely illuminated and adorned with beautiful miniatures. The delicate and intricate designs in mineral colours display a high water-mark of artistic taste and aesthetic sense. They represent Kūfī, Naskh, Thulth, Nasta'liq, etc. styles of writing. Almost all of them show a high standard of calligraphy. Some of them have been written by well-known calligraphers, like 'Imād'ul Ḥusainī, Sulṭān 'Alī Mashhadī, Ahmad Nairaizī, Abdu'l Karīm, the great-grandson of 'Imādu'l Ḥusainī, Khwāja Abdu'llah Ṣairafī, Muḥammad Ṣāliḥ and Muḥammad Na'imul Ḥusainī, Iṣfahānī. Among Mss. of a historical value mention may be made of Ziyārat Nāma (p. 2621), bearing the autograph of Sulṭān Muḥammad Quṭb Shāh of Golconda, (1611-1626 A.D.) and Raudat'ush-Shuhada (P. 2624), which is from Sulṭān Abdullah Quṭb Shāh's library (1626-1672 A.D.), bearing his name in bold gold letters at the end.

From a literary point of view also the works of great Oriental writers, like Firdausī, Rūmī, Jāmī, Niẓāmī, Sa'dī and Ḥāfiz, deserve special mention.

This Catalogue comes as the first of the series of Mss. Catalogues. The work of cataloguing the rest of the Mss. could not be undertaken for want of time, due to multifarious duties and heavy office work. Efforts will, however, be made to catalogue the remaining Mss., time permitting.

I am indebted to Dr. P. Sreenivasachar M.A., PH.D. (London), the present Director of Archaeology, Government of Hyderabad,

NTRODUCTION

India is standing at the threshold of a new era. It is time for her to rise equal to the occasion and play her part in keeping with her heritage. The need has also arisen to establish closer political, commercial and cultural relations with the outside world. For this purpose India will have to adopt measures similar to those taken in other progressive countries. A close examination of the educational systems of Western democracies as well as the systems obtaining in the U.S.A. and U.S.S.R.—the leading States of the modern world—will disclose that the maintenance of Oriental Museums, Institutions and Schools of Oriental and Islamic studies is an essential feature of the foreign and cultural policy pursued by them.

The establishing of Oriental Museums and the founding in—Universities in U.S.A., U.S.S.R., Great Britain, Holland, France and Germany—of a number of chairs in Oriental Languages, Religions, Philosophy and Archaeology is an evidence again of the advanced view they take of culture and civilization.

The museums play an important role in developing Oriental Studies in this country by attracting foreign scholars and in particular by fostering public interest in Oriental Culture.

Long ago, the British Museum published a detailed Catalogue of Manuscripts in Arabic and Persian. A few years back the United States of America got through UNESCO the services of an able Iraqian, Mr. Jurjis Awad, the Chief Librarian of Iraq Museum, who made a tour of America and published a Catalogue of rare Arabic Mss., preserved in the various museums and libraries of U.S.A.

The Turkish Government is also publishing in instalments a Catalogue of rare Arabic, Persian and Turkish Manuscripts.

For centuries Hyderabad has remained an important centre of Eastern Culture. There are here public and private libraries and museums which contain priceless specimens of art and paintings and precious Mss., 'more precious than ruby and gold.'

An old college friend of mine, Mr. Mohammed Ghause, M.A., a sound scholar of Arabic and Islamic Studies, has prepared a Catalogue of Arabic, Persian and Urdu Mss., preserved in the Hyderabad

FOREWORD

In publishing this Catalogue of the Arabic, Persian and Urdu Manuscripts in the Hyderabad Museum, I wish to express my deep sense of gratitude to Dr. Mohd. Yusufuddin, M.A., Ph.D., of the Osmania University for the Introduction, which he readily consented to write and also for his invaluable help in various other ways. Mr. Mohammad Ghause, who compiled this Catalogue, is a rising young scholar of this department.

It is earnestly hoped that, before long, this department will be able to bring out a Catalogue of all other Manuscripts in this section.
